

Information on the EPA Child Care Web site:

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has launched a new web-based resource directory of environmental health information for child care. This Web site was developed with three target audiences in mind: child care providers, parents, and state and local agencies; the information it contains is arranged to be easily accessible for these three distinct audiences.

On the web site you will find links to a wealth of information (fact sheets, PPTs, trainings, assessment tools, reports, prevention and intervention guidance, etc.) on asthma, chemical hazards, environmental tobacco smoke, green cleaning, indoor air quality, lead, mercury, mold, pesticides and plastics. We hope you find this website useful and welcome your suggestions on how it can be improved.

<http://www.epa.gov/childcare>