Commissioner Kebo said that he would compile a set of values that will guide the commission’s work. Commissioner Milliken said that each commissioner brings their own set of motivations. Some of the motivations mentioned during the discussion were Custody issues and Family Court and how fathers struggle with communicating with the mother of the child and family court concerning who gets custody of the children. Many fathers are without the resource to pursue custody of their children. Commissioner Mattos spoke about some examples of this type of situation. The long term benefits of a strong strategic plan will include public awareness of the existence of the commission, advocacy in the courts, the education of the judges on the programs and resources available to the fathers. It was mentioned that many fathers are doing well and as a commission we should be aware of the positive attributes and strengths of those fathers and their families. It was also mentioned that commission need to focus on setting priorities that will make an impact on the general welfare of fathers in our state. It was further mentioned that the commission should increase the social media and work with an IT person to improve the commission website. Mr. Adessa mentioned that there is a Hawaii Dads Facebook. Commissioner Mattos mentioned that Maui Family Support Services has Men/Fatherhood education programs. It was stated that the commission needs to develop resources, identify the resources, where and how to access the resources for fathers in the state.
